The Salt Lake Tribune
THURSDAY MORNING, JAN. 11, 1886.
Published by the Tribune Publishing Co.,
No. 100 North Second Street, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Convention and the Anti-Polygamist Act.

We briefly noted a day or two since the fact that the organ of the Mormon church, had in a labored article of three and a half columns, entered into an open and avowed advocacy of the practice of Polygamy. We congratulated our readers that the church authorities openly proclaimed the doctrine, now that the "proof of its practice is over" and the "proof of its practice is over."

It is not only that the church authorities openly proclaimed the doctrine, now that the "proof of its practice is over" and the "proof of its practice is over."

It is not only that the church authorities openly proclaimed the doctrine, now that the "proof of its practice is over" and the "proof of its practice is over."

Gov. Bross on Polygamy, etc.

Gov. Bross, of the Chicago Tribune, who was here last summer with the Colfax party, has given his opinions, in print, pretty truly on the state of things in Utah. We republish the substance of his remarks, from his letter and editorials:

POLYGAMY.

On this subject we have had a long and frank and very free conversation with Brigham Young and several of his leading men, and at various times during the week with a very considerable number of the bishops and elders not present at the conference. Mr. Colfax and all his party have not hesitated to express their condemnation of the system, and to say that it is under the ban of the whole civilized world.

As to the facts we have been able to gather, our convictions in regard to the demoralizing effects of polygamy are, if possible, more decided than ever before. The men who practice it have been educated by one father and one mother, and therefore, the full results of the system will not appear until long after the present generation of adults are dead, should it continue to be tolerated by the Government and the people of the nation. The want of proper parental instruction that must exist where polygamy is practiced, and the utter degradation of women, incidental and inseparable from the system, will as surely in the end fall upon Anglo-Saxon polygamists as they do upon any other heathen nation. As at the South Sea Islands, where the practice of the wealthy and influential, so this peculiar vice is indulged in mainly by the leading and wealthy men among the Mormons, some say one fourth, some think more, and some less, while the majority, and some of the leaders as well, have but one wife each. While the men who have two or more wives pretend to be thoroughly convinced that they are doing right, we are assured that there is not an infidel of Mormon women in the Territory, who, when her real sentiments can be known, approves of polygamy. Whatever opinions we may form of the men, all who know anything of the misery they suffer, must pity the woman. To us they appear dejected and many of their heart broken, and as time rolls on, the essential evil of the system must become more apparent and revolting. To degrade the woman from being the companion and the crown of her husband, to a life of mere servitude, ministering to the lusts of men, and merely giving birth to other human animals, suits of polygamy—an unclean, abominable thing, which must not and cannot be permanently tolerated in this civilized Christian Republic. The sooner this determination is understood by those who practice it, the better; for, like all festering sores, the longer it is endured the more difficult of removal and the more dangerous it becomes.

When woman ceases to be the equal and the glory of her husband, she becomes hopelessly degraded. Envy, jealousy, and her other base passions subside, and, so to speak, sponge out the higher and nobler principles of her nature. Thus it often happens that the more wives a man has, the more all but the last one will urge him to take for instance, No. Five is the youngest, and the pet of her husband. In order to bring down her high looks, the first four regard with favor the prospect of the sixth being added to their number, and often even conspire with woman to bring the match about. The difference between a fifth and the sixth part of a husband's attentions, as the mathematicians sometimes say of infinitesimal quantities, is so small that it may be neglected. In this way, as in many others, the tendency of polygamy is to extend and increase the insupportable evils by which Providence has surrounded it. The certain profits of this system do not yet appear, for the leading men among the Mormons grew to manhood in New and Old England, New York, and other states; but, if permitted to exist—as it surely should not—for two or three generations, the essential brutality of degrading woman to the position of a mere animal, to give birth to other human animals, will be manifest in all the learning and stupendous wickedness. May the nation be spared from the sin and the approach of such a catastrophe.

BRIGHAM YOUNG.

As some one said of Napoleon, "he is one of the favored few, born to command." He is also one of the shrewdest and most cunning of men, and, besides, to the power money gives, and without possessing it, he is now, it is believed, one of the wealthiest men in the nation. While he lives, the Mormon community—unless he and they determine to defy the laws of Congress on the subject of polygamy—will grow and prosper; but that firm hand and iron will must ere long, despite his regular and strictly temperate habits—he uses no tobacco nor liquor of any kind—must tremble in all the learning and stupendous wickedness; and when Brigham Young, sleeps with his fathers, then will come the searching test before which we predict the whole Mormon fabric will crumble to the dust. It may, and doubtless will, continue to exist as a religious sect, but as a compact and tremendously effective organization, its power will cease when Brigham Young's head is forever still. In the settlement of his vast estate among his fifty or more wives and some sixty children, there is ample room for quarrels and law suits potent enough to break up the entire community.

THE PACIFIC ROAD will be completed to Fremont in a few short days, passenger coaches will soon run on regular time east and west, and from that place, the whistle of the locomotive and the rattle of the trains are already resounding in the Great Valley. The track is being laid, under the management of Mr. Drake, at the rate of a mile a day; God speed the Great Road.

"Rocky Thomas."—The Atchison Free Press, a first rate exchange by the way, is responsible for the following:

An amusing story is told of "Rocky" Thomas, who enjoys quite a notoriety on the plains and is known far and near for his genial nature and sparkling wit. "Rocky" served for seven years in the regiment, U. S. A., with the rank of sergeant. While his regiment was stationed in Texas several years ago, sergeant "Rocky" had charge of a corral. One morning two mules were found dead, which fact was promptly reported to the Colonel, who gave the laconic order, "Drag them out," which was forthwith done. Recovered to "Rocky" that if the mules were dragged back in to the corral that night, he could remove and sell two other mules and report "two mules dead" as he had done previously. The mules were accordingly dragged back and two other mules sold, and the morning report—"Two mules dead"—evoked the same order, "Drag them out." The rise was practiced for several successive nights until the Colonel's suspicions were aroused that something was wrong, and he determined to keep watch the following night. About midnight he espied from his office window the enterprising "Rocky" in the act of dragging the veritable mules into the corral. He raised the window and shouted:

"Sergeant, you had better get fresh mules, those are about worn out."

"Rocky" quit his mule speculations and spent a brief time in the guard house.

This veritable Rocky came to Denver in the early days of '60, and was elected "City Assessor," under the "Provisional (Provisional) Government," and toll-bridge too, at Big Laramie, between Denver and this city (Salt Lake).

From New Mexico and Arizona.—Our exchanges from Santa Fe, Albuquerque and Prescott are mighty meagre of any news of interest to retail in this northern region. Saw fell eight inches deep at Santa Fe on the 6th ult. Gen. Carleton got back from a visit to Mesilla Valley. At Albuquerque, en route returning to Santa Fe, he was feted with a grand complimentary festival by the leading business men and citizens. For at Santa Fe was ten inches thick. The "California Volunteer Musical Troupe" were holding forth at the Exchange hotel or found.

The papers are still quarreling about the merits and the measures, pro and con, of Gen. Carleton, Sec. Army, Judge Houghton and others. Col. Chris. Carson got back to Tuas, N. M., after a visit to St. Louis. Alfred Bent (son of Gov. Bent, who was murdered in action at the time of the Mexican insurrection there, twenty or thirty years ago,) was shot at and killed at Tuas city, northern New Mexico, on the 9th ult., by one "Greek George," who afterwards ended his own desperate existence by shooting himself through the head. The Albuquerque Press editor received a Christmas present, in the shape of a watch and chain, and some thirty pound of dried pears, "all of which he eloquently acknowledges at length. The Prescott, Arizona, Miner, of Dec. 6th, chronicles the arrival from the States, of Acting Governor McCortright and his wife, who were welcomed to their "mountain home," in that Apache country, by a series of speeches and a grand big battle in the evening. McCortright will doubtless be appointed Governor in chief.

BOHEMIANS.—The Washington correspondents are all at their posts. The Tribune has Carl Schurz, and three assistants; the Herald, Mr. Cadwallader, and two assistants; the World, Mr. Adams; the Express, James Brooks; the Evening Post and Independent, D. W.
